Export Prospects

Thailand's export outlook for 2026 is expected to moderate, reflecting the clearer impact of U.S. tariff measures, both existing and newly introduced, as well as ongoing adjustments in the global trade regime amid intensifying geopolitical tensions, which are affecting global production and trade structures. In addition, the appreciation of the Thai baht may pose further pressure on export performance. Nevertheless, Thai exports continue to be supported by rising global demand for technology- and AI-related products, concerns over food security, and the growth of emerging markets such as India, Latin America, and Central Asia, alongside greater utilization of tariff preferences under newly effective free trade agreements this year. In this regard, the Ministry of Commerce will closely monitor global trade developments and policy measures to address emerging challenges in a timely manner and to strengthen long-term confidence among Thai exporters.
